LT. GOVERNOR DARDENNE SOLICITS FEEDBACK REGARDING ARTS PLANNING IN LOUISIANA

Lt. Governor Jay Dardenne is announcing that the Louisiana Division of the Arts is beginning a strategic planning process based upon public input which will shape the future programs and services of the Division.

Anyone interested in having a voice in arts programming has an opportunity to provide feedback by responding to an online survey and participating in focus groups and regional assemblies. The survey is found on the Division of the Arts website at www.crt.state.la.us/arts and is available until March 4. The information derived from this survey will be used to develop the strategic plan and help chart the course for the future of the arts in Louisiana.

The completed Strategic Plan will be published in September of 2011.

The Louisiana Division of the Arts is part of the Office of Culture Development within the Department of Culture, Recreation and Tourism. The Division works in partnership with individual artists, creative industries, organizations, and other partners to create opportunities for the citizens of Louisiana through the arts. The Division's planning and evaluation process values public input as a means to ensure that programs and services meet the needs of all constituents.
